MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

I. INTRODUCTION

This Motion for Preliminary Injunction seeks to stop the Medical Board of California, (the “Board”) from continuing or commencing any investigation against any California licensed physician based on the physician’s protected content and viewpoint speech about the Covid pandemic.

II. STATEMENT OF MATERIAL FACTS

A. The Plaintiffs and other Board Investigations About Covid Misinformation

As set forth in the First Amended Verified Complaint (“FAVC”), the Board commenced an investigation of Plaintiff Mackenzie by letter dated December 15, 2021, which requested that he respond to the complaint that he spread Covid misinformation at a Zoom school board meeting. FAVC page 7 para. 28 to page 8 para. 30. Plaintiff Mackenzie’s attorney responded to the request on January 10, 2022. The response did not attempt to explain or scientifically support Plaintiff’s speech. Rather, the response asserted Plaintiff’s First Amendment right to speak out in public. Id. at para. 31. The investigation was apparently pending until on or about July 14, 2022, six days after this lawsuit was commenced, at which point, the Board notified Plaintiff that the investigation had been closed. Id. at page 9 para. 32- 34. (Copies of these three letters are attached to Plaintiff Mackenzie’s Declaration.)

Plaintiff PIC is a physicians’ organization which, inter alia, represents physicians who support voluntary (as opposed to mandatory) vaccination and has different views of informed consent about vaccines than many mainstream practitioners. It has member physicians who speak out against the government’s response to Covid and hence are live targets of the Board’s ongoing and imminent investigations for alleged Covid misinformation. Id. at page 5 para. 20, to page 6 para. 23. (A Declaration from PIC’s General Counsel is being submitted with this Motion).

Plaintiffs are aware of at least two other Board investigations based in whole or in part on complaints of public Covid misinformation. Id. at page 9 paras, 36-37.

B. The Federation’s Call to Action

On or about July 29, 2021, the Federation of State Medical Board issued a press release stating that its member state boards should investigate and sanction physicians for spreading Covid misinformation. Id. at page 10 para. 40 ¹

C. The Board Announces a New Covid Misinformation Policy Retroactively Applied to Plaintiff and others

The minutes of the Board’s February 10-11, 2022 meeting indicate that Board President Kristina Lawson, JD announced that the Board would implement the Federation’s call-to-action and would investigate and discipline physicians for public dissemination of Covid misinformation. Id. at page 11 para. 43. ²

¹ “Physicians who generate and spread COVID-19 vaccine misinformation or disinformation are risking disciplinary action by state medical boards, including the suspension or revocation of their medical license. Due to the specialized knowledge and training, licensed physicians possess a high degree of public trust and therefore have a powerful platform in society, whether they recognize it or not. They also have an ethical and professional responsibility to practice medicine in the best interests of their patients and must share information that is factually, scientifically grounded and consensus driven for the betterment of public health. Spreading inaccurate COVID-19 vaccine information contradicts that responsibility, threatens to further erode public trust in the medical profession and thus puts all patients at risk.”

FSMB: Spreading Covid-19 Vaccine Misinformation May Put Medical License At Risk, Federation of State Medical Boards, News Releases (Jul. 29, 2021), <https://www.fsmb.org/advocacy/news-releases/fsmb-spreading-covid-19-vaccine-misinformation-may-put-medical-license-at-risk/>, offered into evidence as judicially noticeable via Plaintiffs’ Motion for Judicial Notice, (“MJN”), Appendix 1 attached to Counsel’s Declaration.

² “Ms. Lawson stated it is the duty of the board to protect the public from misinformation and disinformation by physicians, noting the increase in the dissemination of healthcare related misinformation and disinformation on social media platforms, in the media, and online, putting patient lives at risk in causing unnecessary strain on the healthcare system. Ms. Lawson elaborated in July 2021, the Federation of State Medical Boards released a statement saying physicians spreading misinformation or disinformation risk disciplinary action by their state medical board.”

FAVC page 11 para. 43, reproduced and offered into evidence as judicially noticeable via the accompanying Motion for Judicial Notice, Appendix 2 to Counsel’s declaration.

D. The Legislature Answers the Federation's Call-to-Action, and then Changes its Mind

In February 2022, the California Assembly introduced AB 2098 which would make the public dissemination of Covid Misinformation a board sanctionable offense. Thereafter, and as a result of concerns about the lack of constitutionality, the Bill was amended to limit the conduct to interactions between physicians and patients for the purpose of treatment or advice. Id. at page 13 paras. 51-54. (Reproduced at MJN Appendix 3)

E. Judicial Notice of Basic Covid Facts

The Court can take judicial notice that the world is still dealing with the Covid pandemic and neither this country nor the world has eliminated the pandemic via vaccines, which is the first and main point Plaintiff made to the school board in his comments one year ago. MJN request number 5.

The Court can also take judicial notice of the fact that the Covid vaccines do not prevent infection or transmission of the disease, which is another point made by Plaintiff Mackenzie to the school board. MJN request 5.

III. LEGAL REQUIREMENTS FOR A PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION

The standard four-part test for a plaintiff to obtain a preliminary injunction is: 1. Likelihood of success on the merits, 2. Irreparable injury in the absence of relief, 3. The balance of equities tips in plaintiff's favor, and 4. Showing the public interest favors granting the injunction. Winter v. Natural Res. Def. Council, Inc. 555 U.S. 7, 20 (2008); Flexible Lifeline Sys. Inc. v Precision Lift, Inc. 654 F.3d 989, 994 (9th Cir. 2001).

However, when the plaintiff asserts a constitutional claim, and especially one involving a fundamental right as is the case here, the three latter elements are either presumed or carry less importance in determining the need for preliminary injunctive relief. Thus, in terms of the irreparable injury requirement, the Supreme Court has held that "[t]he loss of First Amendment freedoms, for even minimal periods of time, unquestionably constitutes irreparable injury" for purposes of the issuance of a preliminary injunction." Elrod v. Burns, 427 U.S. 347, 373, 96 S. Ct. 2673, 49 L.Ed.2d 547 (1976);" Establishing probable success on the merits of a First

1 Amendment claim itself demonstrates irreparable harm. S.O.C. v. County of Clark, 152 F.3d.
2 1136, 1148 (9th Cir. 1998).

3 Similarly, regarding the balancing of the interests of the parties, in Baby Tam & Co. v.
4 City of Las Vegas, 154 F.3d 1097, 1102 (9th Cir. 1998),³ this Circuit reversed the lower court's 5 denial of a preliminary injunction, because it concluded that the plaintiff had established that 6 the challenged ordinance violated the First Amendment. It ordered the district court to enter a 7 permanent injunction. without a trial and without considering the balance of equities between 8 the parties.

9 Baby Tam is consistent with the Supreme Court's reluctance to balance the equities
10 when the government is attempting to suppress content-based speech. See United States v.
11 Alvarez, 567 U.S. 709, 717 (2012) ("In light of the substantial and expansive threats to free 12 expression posed by content-based restrictions, this court has rejected as 'startling and 13 dangerous' a 'free floating test for First Amendment coverage ... [based on] an ad hoc 14 balancing of relative social costs and benefits.' United States v. Steven, 559 U.S. 460, 470
15 (2010)."

16 As to the public's interest, it has been generally held that there is no public "interest in 17 the enforcement of an unconstitutional law." ACLU v. Ashcroft, 322 F.3d 240, 251 n. 11 (3rd 18 Cir. 2003). Further, "By protecting those who wish to enter the marketplace of ideas from 19 government attack, the First Amendment protects the public's interest in receiving 20 information." Pac. Gas & Elec. Co. v. Pub. Utils. Comm'n of Cal., 475 U.S. 1, 8 (1986).

21 In short, if Plaintiffs clearly establishes a First Amendment violation, this federal court
22 should grant the preliminary injunction stopping the continuing Constitutional violation. It
23 would be odd indeed if the Court would conclude that investigating Plaintiff and other 24 physicians for speaking in public violates their First Amendment rights of free speech (and the 25 concomitant right of the public to hear this information), and or violates their Due Process
26

27
28 ³ Abrogated on other grounds by Dream Palace v. County of Maricopa, 384 F.3d 990, 1002 rights, but nonetheless decided not to enjoin the continuing violations. The Court should stop the Board, right here, and right now.
(9th Cir. 2004).

IV. ARGUMENT

A. Plaintiffs have an overwhelming likelihood of success on the merits on their Constitutional Claims

1. The First Amendment Free Speech Claim

Because Plaintiffs fully tabled First Amended Verified Complaint sets out and discusses most of the relevant case law, there seems little need to repeat that herein. Instead, the legal arguments will be summarized and amplified as necessary.

a. Basic Principles

The First Amendment applies to States via the Fourteenth Amendment and at its core provides that with some limited exceptions, the government has no power to restrict the subject matter or content of speech (FAVC page 16, paras. 63-65).

b. Investigating Physicians for “Covid misinformation” is Targeting Protected Content-based Speech and therefore Presumptively Unconstitutional

In this case, the Board is investigating Plaintiff and all similarly situated physicians based on the content of their speech, i.e. speech relating to the "topic discussed or the idea or message expressed." Reed v. Town of Gilbert, 576 U.S. 155, 163 (2015). A reliable way to determine whether the government's restriction of free speech is content-based is to ask whether the enforcement authorities must "examine the content of the message that is conveyed to know whether the law has been violated." Otto v. City of Boca Raton, 981 F.3d 854, 862 (11th Cir. 2020) citing Mc Cullen v. Coakley, 573 U.S. 464, 479 (2014).

Government restrictions of content-based speech are "presumptively invalid." R.A.V. v. City of St. Paul, 505 U.S. 377, 382 (1992). The seminal and most recent and Supreme Court case on the general illegality of content-based government restrictions is United States v. Alvarez, 567 U.S. 709, wherein the Supreme Court struck down the Stolen Valor act, which made it a crime to lie about receiving the Congressional medal of honor. The Supreme Court

1 held that the act was an improper content-based restriction barred by the First Amendment free
2 speech clause, even though the speech criminalized by the act involved a lie.

3 It is indisputable that the Federation's July 29, 2021 call-to-action and Board
4 President's Lawson's implementation thereof (via her February 10-12, 2022 Board
5 memorialized comments) targets highly protected content-based pure speech of the Plaintiff
6 and any other California licensed physician who speaks out against the Government's response
7 to Covid. As such, this censorship of physician viewpoints is presumptively unconstitutional.

8 c. Investigating Physicians for "Covid misinformation" is 9 Protected Viewpoint-based Speech which is Fully Protected
10 Speech and Practically Speaking Per Se Unconstitutional

11 Of all the types of content-based speech, viewpoint-based government restrictions to 12 free speech is an especially "... egregious form of content discrimination." Otto v City of 13 Boca Raton, 981 F.3d at 864, citing Rosenberger v. Visitors of Univ. of Virginia, 515 U.S.
14 819, 829, (1995). In fact, in Otto, the Eleventh Circuit stated that:

15 Indeed, there is an argument that such regulations are 16 unconstitutional per se; The Supreme Court has said that 'the First 17 Amendment forbids the government to regulate speech in ways that 18 favor some viewpoints or ideas at the expense of others.' Members
19 of the City Council v. Taxpayers for Vincent, 466 U.S. 789, 804
20 (1984) (parallel citations omitted). In that case, it applied 21 heightened scrutiny only after finding that the challenged law was 22 viewpoint neutral. (citations omitted.) As Rosenberger said,
23 'government must abstain from regulating speech when the specific 24 motivating ideology or the opinion or perspective of the speaker is 25 the rationale for the restriction. (citation omitted.) And we have not 26 shied away from the same point: 'The prohibition against 27 viewpoint discrimination is 'firmly embedded in first amendment
28 analysis' Searcey v. Harris, 888 F.2d 1314, 1325 (11th Cir. 1989).
Those holdings do not leave a lot of breathing room for viewpoint-based speech restrictions.

26 Id.

27 The take-away from Otto is that while the Supreme Court has not quite explicitly 28 adopted a per se rule against viewpoint-based government restrictions to free speech, there is almost no “breathing room” for such government interference. And let us remember that Otto involved communications between health care practitioners and their patients. So, whatever breathing room there might be for the government to restrict professional speech to patients is likely nonexistent when the practitioner is speaking to the public, as set forth in this case.

d. Ninth Circuit Authority Strongly Supports Issuing a Preliminary Injunction⁴

In Pickup v. Brown, 740 F.3d at 1227, the court cited two authorities (a Colorado Appellate Decision and a law review article) that stated that health care boards cannot discipline practitioners for expressing their opinions in public. FAVC at page 16 para. 68 to page 17, para. 69.

The Pickup court also cited Justice Byron White who cited Justice Jackson, both of whom expressed the same notion, that the government cannot sanction professionals for speaking out in public about matters of public concern. (Id. at page 17 para. 71 to page 18).

In Conant v. Walters, 309 F.2d. 629 (9th Cir. 2002) two separate district court judges entered injunctions against the DEA for investigating physicians for recommending medical marijuana to their patients which was held to be a First Amendment violation, and the permanent injunction was upheld by this circuit.

It is important to point out that Conant was not a challenge by a physician under DEA investigation for recommending medical marijuana (or challenging the DEA’s request to respond to a complaint). It was a challenge filed by patient and physician groups based on a DEA written policy sent to state medical boards and physicians’ organizations that the DEA would investigate physicians who would “risk revocation of their DEA prescription authority” if they recommended the schedule 1 drug to patients. Conant v. Walters, supra, 309 F.2d. at 633 (9th Cir. 2002).

1 The analogy here is that Conant strongly suggests that Board President Lawson’s
 2 statement in the Board minutes is an actionable infringement of California physicians’ First
 3 Amendment rights, and that the fact that the Board has closed its investigation is not a defense
 4 to this lawsuit.

5 Finally, there is an a fortiori argument to be made from both Pickup and Conant. Both 6 involved communications between physicians and patients, which is far closer to professional 7 conduct which incidentally involves speech, which may be less protected than public speech 8 which cannot be suppressed or sanctioned except for rare exceptions based on “historical and 9 traditional” categories of speech not accorded constitutional protections like fighting words, 10 obscenity, commercial speech and such. See United States v. Alvarez, 567 U.S. at 717.

11 e. NIFLA v. Becerra Strongly Supports Granting a Preliminary
 12 Injunction

13 Nat’l Inst. of Family & Life Advocates v. Becerra, 138 S. Ct. 2361, 2374 (2018) is the 14 most recent Supreme Court authority on speech by professionals and it offers important
 15 guidance which support the granting of a preliminary injunction for several reasons. NIFLA
 16 dealt with government compelled speech in the form of a law requiring anti-abortion
 17 pregnancy centers to provide patients with information about abortions. The California district
 18 court denied the plaintiff’s First Amendment motion for preliminary injunction, and the Ninth
 19 Circuit affirmed. The Supreme Court reversed and ordered the Ninth to order the district 20 court to grant the preliminary injunction.

21 To get there, first, the Supreme Court rejected the notion circulating in the lower 22 courts (including the Ninth Circuit) that professional speech was a distinct form of speech
 23 over which the government had greater regulatory control than other types of pure speech.

24 Second, the majority opinion manifested a deep skepticism about the government’s 25 attempt to control speech by physicians, even when the speech is directed to patients. This 26 deep mistrust caused the Supreme Court to cite some extremely harsh analogies to the most 27 extreme authoritarian regimes that had also attempted to control what physicians told 28 patients.

1 To make that point, the majority opinion quoted a concurring opinion by an Eleventh
 2 Circuit judge who noted that "Throughout history, governments have `manipulat[ed] the 3 content of doctor-patient discourse' to increase state power and suppress minorities."
 4 The NIFLA opinion then continued quoting the concurring judge's examples of Chinese, Soviet 5 and Nazi doctors who "systematically violated the separation between state ideology and 6 medical discourse. German physicians were taught that they owed a higher duty to the 'health
 7 of the Volk' than to the health of the individual patient." NIFLA, 138 S. Ct. at 2374 (2018),
 8 quoting Wollschlaeger v. Governor of Florida, 848 F.3d 1293, 1328 (11th Cir. 2017)
 9 (Pryor, J. concurring opinion).

10 If the NIFLA majority thought such harsh historical comparisons were appropriate for 11 physician communications with patients, one can only image what they would say about 12 attempted government suppression of physicians who speak out in public.

13 f. The Level of Scrutiny is Irrelevant Because the Board's Action
 14 Are Illegal Under State and Federal Law, apart from the Fact
 15 they Violate Physicians' Free Speech rights

16 Content and viewpoint-based restrictions to free speech being a fundamental right are 17 usually mandate strict scrutiny meaning proof of a compelling state need and the least 18 restricting means possible. Otto v. City of Boca Raton, 981 F.3d 854. However, arguably, no 19 such analysis is required in this case because the Board's investigations of physicians for 20 their public speech does not satisfy any level of scrutiny for the simple reason that its actions 21 are otherwise illegal under federal and state law for three reasons: (1). The Board is 22 attempting enforce an illegal and unenforceable underground regulation, (2). Its investigation 23 of Plaintiff Mackenzie and all other physicians prior to the Board's announcement of the 24 underground regulation would violate the ex post facto provision of Article 10 of the 25 Constitution and (3). The only theoretical statutory authority for these Board investigations 26 is unconstitutionally vague and overbroad.

i. If allowed to continue, Board President Lawson’s Statement of Intent to Pursue Physicians for Public Covid Misinformation would be an Illegal Underground Regulation

(A) Board President Lawson’s Statement:

Board President’s Lawson’s statement recorded in the Board’s minutes (page 2, footnote 2 supra) is an official Board statement of general applicability announcing a new board enforcement policy which presumably implements or interprets some preexisting statutory authority allowing it to “protect the public” from misinformation/disinformation “on social media platforms, in the media and online” such that the Board can and will discipline physicians for publicly propagating misinformation and/or disinformation.

(B) California law on Underground Regulations

The California Administrative Procedure Act (“APA”) provides that “[n]o state agency shall issue, utilize, enforce, or attempt to enforce ... a regulation” without complying with the APA’s notice and comment provisions. (Gov. Code, § 11340.5, subd. (a).)

Under the APA,

“[a] ‘regulation’” is defined as “every rule, regulation, order, or standard of general application or the amendment, supplement, or revision of any rule, regulation, order, or standard adopted by any state agency to implement, interpret, or make specific the law enforced or administered by it, or to govern its procedure.” (Gov. Code, § 11342.600.) This is a very broad definition, providing two principal identifying characteristics for regulations. (See Tidewater Marine Western, Inc. v. Bradshaw (1996) 14 Cal.4th 557, 571, 59 Cal.Rptr.2d 186, 927 P.2d 296 (Tidewater).) “First, the agency must intend its rule to apply generally, rather than in a specific case. The rule need not, however, apply universally; a rule applies generally so long as it declares how a certain class of cases will be decided. [Citation.] Second, the rule must ‘implement, interpret, or make specific the law enforced or administered by [the agency], or ... govern [the agency’s] procedure.’ ” (Ibid.)

Malaga Cty. Water Dist. v. Cent. Valley Reg’l Water Quality Control Bd. 58 Cal.App.5th 418, 434 (2020).

As set forth by the California Appellate court in Excelsior College v. Cal. Bd. of Nursing, 136 Cal.App.4th 1218 (2006):

"An underground regulation is a regulation that a court may determine to be invalid because it was not adopted in substantial compliance with the Administrative Procedure Act (Gov. Code, § 11340 et seq.)" (Modesto City Schools v. Education Audits Appeal Panel (2004) 123 Cal.App.4th 1365 1381, 20 Cal.Rptr.3d 831.) We will conclude a regulation is an underground regulation if (1) the agency intended it to apply generally rather than in a specific case and (2) the agency adopted it to implement, interpret, or make specific the law enforced by the agency. (Ibid.)"

Id. at 1233.

Since the Board cannot show compliance with the APA in issuing this new enforcement policy adopting the Federation's press release, the policy is an illegal and unenforceable underground regulation. See Morning Star v. State Bd. of Equalization, 38 Cal.4th 324 (2006) (underground regulation is invalid and unenforceable); Clovis Unified Sch. Dist. v. Chiang, 188 Cal.App.4th 794 (2010) (same).

2. Due Process Vagueness

It is black letter constitutional law that where a statute "threatens to inhibit the exercise of constitutionally protected rights," the Constitution requires an especially high level of clarity. Village of Hoffman Estates, 455 U.S. 489, 499, 102 S. Ct. 1186, 1193 (1982). And a law which "nominally imposes  civil penalties," if those are "prohibitory and stigmatizing," courts still undertake a close review for vagueness. Id." Hopkins v. Jegley, 510 F.Supp.3d 638, 734 (E.D. Ark. 2021).

The Board's apparent attempt to use Bus. & Prof. Code Section 2234(e) as the basis for its Covid misinformation investigations triggers the strictest review for vagueness, because it both inhibits the exercise of constitutionally protected right to free speech and because findings

1 of professional misconduct constitute stigmatizing penalties.⁵ Plaintiffs submit this purported
 2 basis of the investigation of Plaintiffs and other physicians is unconstitutionally vague and 3 threatens to inhibit the exercise of Plaintiffs and all California physicians First Amendment
 4 rights of free speech to the public.

5 This court itself has had experience with a case with multiple similarities to this one. In 6 Potts v. Cty. of Trinity, No. 2:12-CV-01793 JAM-CMK, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 119920 (E.D.
 7 Cal. Aug. 22, 2012), this Court granted a preliminary injunction to a sheriff's deputy who was 8 censured for writing letters to the editor critical of policing policies. A copy of the preliminary
 9 injunction order and the transcript of the hearing of the motion is attached to Counsel's
 10 declaration in the MJN as Appendix 4. The policy statement held to be unconstitutionally
 11 vague in Potts, is a quantum level less vague than Business and Professions Code section 12 2234(e), or the Federation's call to action.

13 Accordingly, the Board's possible use of Section 2234(e) as a basis for sanctioning
 14 physicians for speaking out in public fails because of its vagueness violation of due process.

15 B. Irreparable Injury

16 Plaintiffs' declarations show that protected free speech is actively being chilled, causing 17 irreparable injury to the physicians and also the public that benefits from the free marketplace 18 of ideas.

19 As indicated in Section II above, irreparable injury is presumed if there is strong 20 evidence of a First Amendment freedom of speech violation. The Board's February 10-11, 21 2022 announcement that it intended to effectuate the Federation's call-to-action has had a
 22 chilling effect on Plaintiff Mackenzie and other physicians. The Declaration of PIC's counsel
 23 Greg Glaser quotes an example of the types of communications he has received from PIC's
 24

 26 ⁵ Bus. & Prof. Code Section 2234(e) makes Board sanctionable: "(e) The commission of any 27 act involving dishonesty or corruption that is substantially related to the qualifications, 28 functions, or duties of a physician and surgeon." Unless and until AB 2098 passes there is no other possible statute which could even arguably apply to Plaintiffs' conduct, and of course, the bill even if it because law could not be applied retroactively for ex post facto reasons.

1 members asking for guidance about what they are permitted to say about Covid in public. Mr.
2 Glaser's declaration describes the adverse and chilling effects that the Board's announced
3 policy (and AB 2098) is having on PIC's members.

4 C. Balancing the Equities

5 The balance of equities favors protecting protected free speech. It favors the free
6 marketplace of ideas. And here, it also favors recognition of the fact that scientific debate is,
7 and needs to be vibrant regarding Covid.

8 The balance of equities further favors Plaintiffs because the Board does not have the 9 statutory or regulatory authority to investigate or sanction physicians for speaking out in public 10 about the pandemic, and its attempt to do so is based on an underground regulation, an 11 unconstitutionally vague statute, and the ex post facto application of the underground 12 regulation. In addition, seventy-five years of jurisprudence strongly suggests that the 13 government cannot suppress content and viewpoint public speech.

14 It is otherwise hard to see how the Board can have any equities on its side when there
15 does not appear to be a single case in United States jurisprudence which has affirmed a 16 licensing board's attempt to sanction a licensee for public speech relating to a matter of public
17 importance. And finally, the Board cannot demonstrate that investigation or even sanctioning a 18 few or even many California physicians would have a meaningful impact on the public health
19 discussion of the government's response to the pandemic. Thus, the Board's newly created 20 investigative authority over protected speech is not only unconstitutional, it is futile.

21 D. The Public Interest

22 Obviously, the public cannot have any interest in the Board acting illegally and in 23 violation of the constitutional rights of its licensees. Beyond the manifest illegality, in an 24 evolving pandemic, the public's interest is best served by having medically trained people
25 speak in public, even if their viewpoint is against the currently accepted government views.
26 Indeed, scientific progress made to date has depended upon free speech.

27 The Glaser Declaration presents several examples where the public health authorities 28 had to walk-back their recommendations, in part based on criticism by physicians who might

1 have been accused of “Covid misinformation. One thing which the pandemic has surely taught 2 us all is that the science is evolving, and that sometimes, what was thought to be so by the 3 experts, has turned out not to be so.

4 It is not the job of a California Medical Board to police, investigate, sanction, censor or 5 sanitize the thoughts and public speech of its licensees about matters of public importance.
6 That is the fundamental truth of this case, and why the Court should stop the Board from doing 7 so.

8 V. REQUEST THAT NO BOND BE REQUIRED

9 This case seeks to protect the First Amendment rights of physicians to speak out in 10 public about important matters of public interest, and the First Amendment rights of the public 11 to hear the views of physicians who disagree with the government’s prevailing (but continually 12 changing) Covid narrative.

13 We have a long tradition in this country of allowing people to express their views about 14 matters of public importance, subject to clearly defined categories of unprotected content-15 based speech. There is no tradition of suppressing physicians from speaking their minds, at 16 least there was no such tradition until the Federation’s call-to-action attempt to create one.

17 No harm will befall the Board if the Court maintains the status quo of our long tradition
18 of free speech by granting the requested preliminary injunctive relief. Therefore, Plaintiffs’
19 request that no bond be required if the requested relief is granted.

20 WHEREFORE for the foregoing reasons, Plaintiffs request that the Motion for 21 Preliminary Injunction be granted, and specifically that

- 22 1. the Board be ordered to stop all its investigations of physicians for protected 23 free speech, including but not limited to the public expression of views about 24 the pandemic, the mandates, vaccines, treatments or any other content 25 relating to the pandemic,
- 26 2. All subjects of the Board’s current investigations for Covid misinformation
27 (and disinformation) be notified that their investigation has been temporarily
28 ordered withdrawn pending the final order of this Court;

3. The Board post on its web site that the Board President Lawson's February board meeting statement announcing that those physicians are subject to investigation and disciplinary action for covid mis/disinformation has been enjoined by this Court;
4. That no preliminary injunction bond is required, and for such other and further relief as the Court deems just.
